The impact of cultural intelligence and skill in local language On The success of international managers

Mahboobe asadzade
Student of marketing, University of semnan, semnan, Iran

Abstract

This article with the aim of describing and explaining the impact two variable cultural intelligence and skill in local language on the success of the managers of the Organization of the present time in the international to the examination of sources and literature related with this issue and with search in library resources while presenting definitions and concepts related to the two variable to explaining different aspects are dealt with this variable and with the help of the model presented in the Essays to former finally presenting a model for a new research field in this connection deals with.